

My Vocation Story

It was in high school back in 2012 that I decided to join as a candidate of possible priesthood study, simply because the desire sprang out of the love for caring and serving people. Since then I completed my secondary studies in 2014. I was then fortunate and was accepted for Madang Cup Propaedeutic year at St. Fidelis Seminary in 2015. My two years of propaedeutic, including my spiritual year, has been a great blessing and prosperous year for me.

Since then, in 2019, I continued to Fatima Good Shepherd Seminary for philosophical studies. It was another challenging year for me. I believe myself not to be disqualified of my interest in becoming a priest in spite of academics and my person conduct. Thus I walked with a fire on it to make sure I would be on the safe boat to discover my true vocation or identity in life in the world of stormy cloud and thunder. I noticed that every moment in life I whispered to the lord for a miracle, but certainly every grace is a miracle for me, assuming that I make use of every opportunity and privilege in life. Detecting this life was more interesting to me as I was gearing on towards another level of my learning. I did learn a lot simply by living close to the heat of the Blessed Sacrament, praying, and communing with him through worthily receiving of his Body and Blood, and even most times I walked the ground to the Mountain to pray with the Blessed Virgin Mary to fill her presence and be communion with her. She led the way forward as I successfully completed my studies with the heart of serving God and the people.

Conclusion: from what I have seen, feel, and even my personal experience, it reminds me that the spiritual aspect of my formation in the seminary is par-excellent or in other sense it is necessarily important, for it would determine my future ministry. My future ministry as a priest relies heavily up on how I transform my inner being, and that would attract and at the same time would bear ample fruit that would leave a legacy as genuine and model priest.
